After Two-Hour, 40-Minute Delay

Apollo-17 Speeding Toward the Moon

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Dec 7 (UPI).-Apollo-17 blasted off and sped toward the moon todar on the longest and final chapter in America's planned lunar exploration program,

An electronic-circuit failure 30 seconds before lift-off delayed the launch two hours and 40 minutes-and threatened to postpone it for an entire month. But technicians at Cape Kennedy and in Alabama worked out a way to bypass the faulty gear and the flight started safely.

After that everything went smoothly for astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. (Jack) Schmitt. Five hours after lift-off, the spacemen were well on their way toward a Monday rendezvous with the moon. They had locked the command ship and moon-landing craft nose-to-nose and cast off the spent top stage of their Saturn-5 rocket.

The biggest problem seemed a mysterious-and apparently harmless-repeated squealing of the spacecraft's master alarm totte. That, mission control indicated, was merely a nagging irritant, for the present.

No Delay Problems

Space agency officials said that the delayed launch should cause no problems for the flight. But it did force cancellation of a plauned space telecast showing the separation of the linked-up spacecraft from the Satura

The officials said that the lost time would be recovered by e speeded-up voyage to lunar orbit and Monday's moon landing would occur at the originally scheduled time.

The delay also added nearly three hours to the astronauts' work day. But the spacemen, locked inside their white spacecraft when the countdown stop-ped, used the holdup to rest.

CAPE KENNEDY, Pla., Dec. 7 (NYT).—In camper trucks, on motorcycles, in pup tents and simply sprawled across blankets, hundreds of thousands of people pressed close to the Kennedy space center last night to watch the last scheduled Apollo launching to the moon. While Brevard County and Florida state officials were preparing for the crowd, estimated at 500,000, floodlights bathed the white Apollo-17 craft, making it the brightest object in the county. From as far away as 20 miles the rocket could be seen, a brilliant white glow in a salt marsh

According to Herb Johnson, the Brevard County civil defense director, the crowd was larger than for the last few Apollo launches, but not as large as the million who watched Apollo-11the first flight to the moon's surface-lift off.

One unusual aspect of the crowd, Mr. Johnson said, is that many apparently came prepared to spend the night,

Soviet Commitment Sought

U.S. Is Seeking Talks On MBFR Within Year

By John M. Goshko

BRUSSELS, Dec. 7 (WP),-Secretary of State William P.
Rogers told the NATO foreign ministers today that the United States wants a commitment from the Soviet Union to begin actual negotiations on reducing military forces in Central Europe by the Speaking to the winter meet-ing of the NATO Ministerial Council, Mr. Rogers urged the alliance members to make this a main goal of the upcoming ex-ploratory talks on the possibility of beginning force reduction negotiations.

This concept—referred to in diplomatic parlance as mutual and balanced force reductions has long been regarded as a crucial factor in the movement toward ending the cold war in Europe. If successful, it would mean a start on dismantling the NATO and Warsaw Pact military machines poised against each other in Central Europe.

A start on so-called MBFR negotiations is especially important to the Nixon administration because of pressures in the U.S. Congress to cut the size of American forces in Europe, President Nixon has contended that it would be folly to unilaterally withdraw American troops when there is a chance winning parallel reductions by the other side.

Talks Expected Soon

It is now 99 percent certain that preparatory MBFR talks will get under way at the end of January, probably in Switzerland. In his speech today, Mr. Rogers left no doubt that Washington is very anxious for the preparatory discussions to develop into real negotiations by next autumn.

U.S. sources said that in his speech Mr. Rogers as-serted that those NATO countries participating in the prepara-tory phase should seek agreement on what countries will participate in the negotiations, on a carefully prepared agenda and on such procedural matters as the chair-

This attitude underscored the degree to which U.S. enthusiasm for the security conference has grown in recent weeks, Originally, Washington tended to view a security conference as a propaganda vehicle for Soviet efforts to legitimatize its hegemony in Eastern Europe.

army chiefs of the two countries said that they were "able to compose the differences that existed" and that they were directing local military commanders in Kashmir to draw up the new cease-fire line along the positions held at the end of last December's Indo-Pakistan war.

According to Indian official sources Pakistan has accepted the Indian contention that the disputed one-and-a-half-square-mile Kashmir territory known as Thako Chak, 20 miles west of Jammu,

The resolution of the dispute, which had held up other steps of normalization of relations between India and Pakistan, came in the second round of talks in Lahore between Indian Army chief Gen. S.H.F.J. Manekshaw and Gen. Tikka Khan, of Pakistan.

Gen. Manekshaw said here that there would be "no further delay" in the withdrawal of troops from the territories along the international border south of Kashmir. Under the peace agreement signed between the leaders of the two (Continued on Page 3, Col. 7)

However, the meeting did re-veal that the NATO allies are still not completely unanimous over the best format for the security conference. Rogers said that the United States opposes, at this time a Soviet proposal for a three-stage conference ending with a meeting of heads of government. As to the French plan. U. S. sources quoted Mr. Rogers as saying the United States con sidered it a possibility but wanted to reserve its final decision.

Plan for E, Germany In another development, West Germany's three allies with rights in Germany as wartime victors— the United States, Britain and France-acknowledged that they have a concerted plan for pursuing diplomatic relations with East Germany.

As outlined by French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann, the three will open preliminary contacts with East Germany after the signing of the treaty estab-lishing relations between the two Germanys on Dec. 21. However, oone of the three will move to the stage of actually opening relations until after the treaty is ratified by the West German parliament, a process that will not be completed until April or

. It also became known today that the three Western Allies have agreed to a West German plan to fudge or hlur the question of East German recognition.

West Germany fears that formail acknowledgments of diplomatio recognition would buttress East German claims to total sovereignty and thereby prejudice hopes of holding open the possibility of eventual German reunification, Therefore, Bonn proposes a plan under which its allies would establish relations with the East Germans and open diplomatic missions in East Berlin, while, at the same time, avoiding a formal declaration of

In his speech to the council. Mr. Scheel spelled this out by saying: "We would welcome it it member countries would forgo express and formal declarations of recognition and, in particular, the transmission of such declarations to East Germany ... There is no legal need for this transmission. Politically, it might give rise to misunderstandings over the meaning of recognition."

'Great Favor' Mr. Scheel also said West Germany would regard it as a "great favor" if the other NATO countries allowed it to be the first to open a mission in East Ger-many. Most of the NATO members, including the Big Three, are expected to honor this request But at least two. Denmark and Norway, are planning quick recognition, and it is not clear whether this will cause them to have emissaries in East Germany before Bonn,

In all of today's discussions, the one element of real conflict involved criticisms by the United States and Britain of Denmark for its tentative plans to make reductions in its armed forces. The projected Danish move is regarded as a weakening of NATO military resources and a potentially dangerous precedent for the alliance.

In reply, Danish Defense Min-ister Kjeld Olesen told newsmen that his government understood the reasons for the criticism and considered it as well-intended. However, he insisted that domestic financial considerations left Denmark no option and said that more afficient use of personnel would minimize the effect of the reduction on NATO defenses.

After the Labor party election victory in Australia, the delega-tion of Australia switched its votes from "no" on the sanctions

Nguyen Xuan Phong, said, "Never before were the chances for peace as great as they are at the present time." More specificially, Saigon dropped its earlier language demanding "formal assurances" of a North Vietnamese troop withdrawal.

Mr. Phong said the North Vietnamese "should decide to withdraw back to North Vietnam all their troops currently operating in South Vietnam."-a number put between 145,000 and 300,000. wording that suggested a possible way around the troop withdrawal impasse, he noted that "with regard to problems between North Vietnam and South Vietnam, they should be settled without difficulty on the basis of mutual respect and reciprocal noninterference.

However, Nguyen Minh Vy. Hanol's deputy negotiator, said that Saigon's demands for some form of North Vietnamese commitment on troop withdrawal had "again forced the negotiations into deadlock,"

The subdued mood of the day was further reinforced by the failure of the French Foreign Minister. Maurice Schumann, to comment on the luncheon to which he invited Mr. Kissinger today at the Foreign Ministry. Mr. Schumann is well known for his aversion to pessimism.

The vessel, the Bright Star, owned by Star Line Ltd. of Hong Kong, arived in Phnom Penh yesterday with 1,800 tons of general cargo. It was the fourth foreign-flag ship sabotaged in Phnom Penh in the last four months.

Officials said the 2,881-ton freighter was at a pier in the Tonle Sap River when the ship's watch and Cambodian armed guards aboard spotted two pairs of frogmen swimming around it about 1:15 a.m. The sentries shot at the frogmen and called in demolition experts to search the

Black Named Leader Of National Council

DALLAS, Dec. 7 (NYT).—The General Assembly of the National Council of Churches voted itself out of existence yesterday by approving a broad reorganization of the 22-year-old council

The plan, overwhelmingly approved by the assembly's 850 delegates, is designed to streamline operations of the council, which is composed of 33 Protestant and Orthodox denominations. The aim is to centralize the council's decision-making but, at the same time, have it represent a broader spectrum of its constituents.

The plan was implemented after the ninth triennial assembly adjourned its four-day session

A black churchman, the Rev. W. Sterling Cary of New York, was elected today to the presidency of the National Council Mr. Cary, 45, an executive of tha metropolitan area of the United Church of Christ, succeeds Dr. Cynthia Wedel, a Washington, D.C., Episcopalian, as head of organization.

The unusual proposal was approved, and this small residential community across the Delaware River from Philadelphia was thus to become probably the first town in America with a brick in every toilet.

The idea is that the brick will take up space in the toflet tank, displacing a small amount of water that is not necessary

"It was a wacky idea that got people laughing and also made them aware that people pollute and people can conserve." said Mrs. Spetgong, a 44-year-old mother of two and o member of the town's Conservation Advisory Board.

U.S. High Court Says Tenants Can Sue If Blacks Barred

By John P. MacKenzie

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (WP).-The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that apartment tenants have the same right as rejected Negro applicants to sue their landlords on charges of racial discrimination.

"The person on the landlord's blacklist is not the only victim of discriminatory housing practices," Justice William O. Douglas said for the court.

Justice Douglas said that the 1968 federal fair housing law recognized that whites may have the same legal stake in securing desegregated housing as the blacks who are the direct objects of racial bias.

Suit by Tenants

The decision, which reinstated a suit brought by tenants of a San Francisco apartment complex, was a victory also for the Departments of Justice and Housing and Urban Development. According to the government, broadened access to the federal courts could enlist larga numbers of "private attorneys general" to help undermanned federal ogencies enforce the law. Private civil rights lawyers joined government attorneys in telling the high court that private suits by rejected black applicants would be far less effective than tenant suits. They noted that blacks may be forced by circumstance to abandon litigation after moving on and settling in bousing where they are more welcome. Although the case before the court involved only a large apartment complex, the reasoning of the court could extend similar rights to occupants of a tightly managed residential development. Plaintiffs in the suit were two tenants, one white and one black The landlord, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., denied discrimination and pointed to a black occupancy of 1 percent. The black tenant said he was a victim of tokenism and was entitled to more integrated living.

The white tenant said he was deprived of the social benefits of living in an integrated community, missed business and professional advantages flowing from living with members of minority groups and was "stigmatized" as a resident of a "white ghetto."

In another action, the court ruled that unions cannot fine workers who quit the union during a strike and return to their

The 8-1 decision, written by Justice Douglas, held that a union has no more control over a former member "than it has over the man in the street." The case involved a strike in 1968-69 by the Textile Workers Union, AFL-CIO, against the Nashoa, N.H., plant of the International Paper Box Machine Co. All but one member of the local roted to strika and, after the strike started, the members agreed that defectors were subject to a $2,000 fine. Thirty-one members eventually quit the union during the lengthy strike and went back to work. The local tried to fine them a day's wages for each day worked.

First Steps on Moon Won't Be Seen on TV

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP).—Television viewers on earth won't be able to see Apollo-17 Capt. Eugene A. Cernan wben he takes bis first step on the lunar soil because of a spacecraft weight limitation.

Apollo-17 is carrying a new array of heavier scientific instruments, and, to meet the weight-carrying capacity of the landing craft, the astronauts will have to leave the 7.25-pound automatic camera behind. There will be plenty of live TV coverage on the surface after they unload a color camera and mount it on their moon car.

Fruit of Apollo Missions

More Is Known of Early Moon Than Earth

By Walter Sullivan

NEW YORK (NYT) .- As a result of the five manned landings on the lunar surface since Neil A. Armstrong took his "one small step" three years ago, more has been learned of the early history of the moon than the total sum of knowledge accumulated thus far on the comparable early history of the earth.

In the current issue of the British journal Nature, it is suggested that some global event on earth about three billion years ago wiped out most of the earlier geologic

The knowledge about the moon still meager and fragmentary, is being extracted from a collection of stones-chiefly those collected by the Apolio-16 astronauts on the last mission. Some of these specimens are at least a halfbillion years older than any ever found on earth.

The lunar samples, and the other findings of the Apollo missions, have not yet answered the oge-old question of the moon's origin, but they have narrowed the options and generated two

Both are derived from evidence that the moon is largely made of "refractory" minerals-those that tures. Such substances would be the first to condense out of a mixture of galeous compounds such as that thought to have eircled the sun as the planets began

Theory on Mercury One of the new theories holds that the moon formed in an orbit as close to the sun as that of is proposed that Mercury itself. being so elere to the sun, is formed of such materials. The other hypothesis is that the moon formed at roughly the same distance from the sun as the earth, but in an orbit tilted sharply to the plane of the eclip-This plane defines a diskshaped region within which all the planets except Pluto-the outermost-circle the sun. Most of the hot gas from which the planets formed is assumed to have lain within this region. Above and below it the low gas pressure would have enabled refractory minerals to condense and. it is proposed, form a moon in an orbit steeply inclined to the ecliptic. The moon sampling and data collection have produced seeming contradictions, same of which, it is hoped, can be resolved by further study and particularly by the heat-flow measurements planned for the Apollo-17 mission. These measurements of the flow of heat from the lunar interior, to be carried out in two holes drilled eight feet into the surface, should help resoive the dispute as to whether the interior of the moon is hot, but remarkably deficient in iron oxide, or cold and more like the composition of the earth's interior.

None of the Apollo samples brought back so far have shown any evidenoce of recent volcanie activity, even though photographs from lunar orbit show many features that resemble fresh lava flows. On the airless moon, the flows would erode very slowly and may be much older than they

Meteorite Impacts

However, twice in recent months heavy meteorites have jostled the moon enough to produce evidence that there is a core that is at least partially molten. The first meteorite hit 90 miles north of the Apollo-14 site, on Mey 13, but the biggest. on July 17, plunged into the Moscow crater, or hit near it, on the far side of the moon.

The shock waves of these impacts are recorded by seismometers at the four Apollo landing sites, and their readings are radioed to earth.

The shock waves from these impacts and from "moonquakes" that occur deep inside the moon all suggest partial melting of the lunar core, according to Gary Latham, who is responsible for the seismic studies.

Mr. Latham suspects that the spontaneously occurring moonquakes may be related to invasions of the otherwise solld part, or "mantle," of the lunar interior by hot fluid from the core. The quakes repeatedly origi-ante at precisely defined sites in a zone between 400 and 600 miles below the lunar surface, While the seismic observations have pointed to a partially molten core, however, data chtained by magnetometers on the lunar surface and in lunar orbit have led other experimenters to deduce a relatively cool interior. These studies focused on the electrical response of the moon to magnetic fields being carried by clouds of gas ejected from the

In a recent summary of the findings, David Strangway of the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston said the internal temperatures deduced from the observed conductivity lay between 1,500 and 2,700 degrees Fahrenhelt. This would hardly be enough to produce melting.

However, this reasoning assumes a certain fron content of the lunar interior that some believe may be too high. Thus Don L. Anderson, head of the Seismological Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology, argued that the interior of the moon may be formed of refractory materials, such as the silicates of calcium, aluminum

The low electrical conductivity of these substances, even at high temperature, would mean that a core formed from them could be hot and still compatible with the magnetic recordings. Mr. Anderson is author of the idea that the moon formed in an orbit tilted sharply to the ecliptic. Rowever, Alastair G.W. Ca-meron of Yeshiva University, proponent of the view that the moon formed just inside the orbit of Mercury, believes it has a small core of relatively pure iron. He notes that the orbit of Mercury is unusually elliptical and attributes this to an early gravitational battle with the moon. The stronger gravity of Mercury, a full-fledged planet. threw the moon into an orbit that carried it out past the

its rather lopsided orbit. Mr. Camr: n points out that both these hypotheses leave unanswered the question of how tho earth's gravity was able to capture the moon into a relatively circular orbit.

earth, whereas the weaker gravity of the moon left Mercury in

Because of this difficulty the theory is still alive that regards the moon as formed from material in orbit around the evolving earth, like the rings of Saturn, However, the idea that the moon was torn from the upper layers of the earth has virtually died as a consequence of the Apollo findings.

The discovery of rocks on the moon that are from 4.25 to 4.5 billion years old seems to rule out any such origin unless it occurred immediately after the earth's formation. All bodies of the solar system are thought to have formed about 4.65 billion Jears ago.

The oldest rocks known on earth have been found by a group from Oxford University in west. Greenland, They reportedly are granite-like rocks a little older than 3.7 billion years.

CAMP DAVID, Md, Dec. (AP).-Within moments of the successful launch of Apollo-17 from Cape Kennedy, President Nixon issued a statement wishing the crew Godspeed and hailing the Apollo program.

In a statement, relayed to newsmen by presidential press secretary Ron Ziegler, Mr. Nixon said:

"With the final mission of the Apolio lunar-exploration series. man completes another step in his quest for knowledge of his universe and of himself.

"Those who come after will stand on the shoulders of the men of Apollo and their dedicated support team. I wish you luck and Godspeed."

Apollo Ships Named As Tributes to U.S.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fig., Dec. 7 (AP).—The crew of Apollo-17 chose the names "America" for their command ship and "Challenger" for their lunar module "to pay tribute to our nation," soid mission commander Eugene A. Carnan.

The impossible dream that I like to call America, that I like to think of as our country, was not an accident," Capt, Cernan said. "The thing that has made America whot it is today is that we have never turned our back on challenge. We thought that very appropriately the name of Challenger would fit right in with the theme of what has made America what it is today."

MOSCOW, Dec. 7 (Reuters).— A Jewish journalist contacted by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D., Minn, during the American's visit here last week said today that be would reject an exit visa to Israel offered by the Soviet authorities.

The journalist, Viktor Perel-man, said his reason was a demand by the authorities for almost $20,000 as compensation for his state-financed higher education.

In an open letter to the Soviet Internal Affairs Minister, Nikolai Shchelokov, he said the education tax was beyond his means and represented "a disgui.ed form of refusal to let me emigrate."

Sen. Humphrey was understood to bave telephoned Mr. Perelman and told him that he had discussed the emigration issue with soviet officials. Mr. Perelman declined, bowever, to speculate whether Sen, Humphrey's intercession prompted the visa offer.

MOSCOW, Dec. 7 .- Two election-season gestures to the Unit-ed States and West Germany apparently have been withdrawn by the Soviet government, according to diplomatic sources.

In both cases, the Soviet government, in October and Novem-ber, relaxed its tight controls on cmigration in what appeared to he efforts to improve the re-election chances of President Nixon and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Now, according to diplomats interviewed today, the Russians have clamped down on the flow of ethnic Germans to the West and reimposed tha diploma tax that fell heavily on Jews seeking emigration to Israel

The total of Jewish emigrants nevertheless continues to rise steadily and has passed 30,000, the expected target for this year, according to the sources. The total of German emigrants had appeared to be heading to the me height.

Between Nov. 1 and 19, the day Mr. Brandt scored a smashing electoral victory, the Soviet government allowed 1,588 citizens of German background to leave the Soviet Union.

Rush Is Over

The three-week total was nearly half of the 3.303 who left in the first 11 months of the year. Only 1.145 were allowed out in all of 1971 and 340 in 1970.

The rush of emigrants was so beavy last month that for many days people were sleeping in the halls and basement of the West German Embassy waiting for transportation out of Moscow. Now the flow of people to West Germany has fallen to "a trickle" of five to 10 a day, ac-cording to diplomats. Ulrich Sahm, the German ambassador. is known to have told Soviet officials he hopes the emigration will be stepped up again, but he has received no reply.

Mr. Brandt was highly favored to win re-election by Soviet leaders because of his policy of relaxing tensions and improving relations with all countries of the Eastern European bloc. The Russians apparently un-derstood the positive impact of releasing thousands of Germans. many of whom have been seeking to leave the Soviet Union for decades. Some of the German families have been in Russia for as long as 300 years. Most of them were

An Imperfect Peace

Reports from Washington and Salgon that the North Vietnamese are planning to hide much of their army in South Vietnam in Vlet Cong units after a cease-fire should come as no snrprise. It is only to be expected-if they agree to pull out their troops in the first place, which is not yet certain.

There is no use pretending that the agreement that Henry Kissinger is trying to hammer into final form in Paris is likely to produce lasting peace. It can hardly do so since it fails to provide a workable formula for resolving the political issues which lie at the heart of the long Vietnamese conflict. While President Nixon and his foreign policy aide talk of peace, both sides in Vietnam are frantically making preparations to pursue the struggle.

President Thieu has made clear his intention to crack down harshiy on Communist activities in the country after any armistice, threatening imprisonment or death to Communist agents. He has moved to extend military control over the government down to the lowest level in the hamlets.

It would be naive to assume that the Communists do not have plans of their own for continuing the fight, once the remaining American forces are gone. If the settlement does not permit North Vietnamese troops to remain in their present unacknowledged positions, it is inevitable that many will simply melt into the South Vietnamese countryside, as they have done in the past. Such a dispersal, or even fresh infiltration through the porous Laotian and Cambodian borders, would be virtually impossible to police. This is one reason why Canada and Indonesia are so reluctant to join the proposed international commission to supervise

One can hope that the Vietnamese, left to their own devices, will soon find a way to reach an accommodation that will finally end decades of bloodshed. But it is too much to expect a tidy end to a messy war.

About the best that Mr. Kissinger can hope to achieve is a period of grace in which to extricate remaining American troops and prisoners from the conflict. For that the American people would be thankful. They should not he misled to expect much more. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Chile's Outburst—No Boon for U.S.

At the United Nations, beleaguered Chile's beleaguered president did-unfortunatelythe easy popular thing. Eschewing the more sober manner in which he has often addressed his own people, Mr. Allende instead indulged in dubious and gaudy rhetoric, accusing American corporations and banks and American influenced lending agencies of "serious aggression" against Chile and his minority Marxist government. That Mr. Allende felt compelled to adopt a style so deliberately provocative to the United States can perhaps be explained as his way to prepare his entrance to Moscow, where he went in order to ask for the large credits denied him elsewhere, or as his way to help his chances next March in the congressional elections he must win to stay in power. Mr. Bush, the American ambassador, did well to turn the other cheek and pay a courtesy call on the Chilean leader before he left

Stripped of inflammatory tinsel, the issue posed by Mr. Allende is, of course, legitimate. It is not American "aggression." It is the whole complex of sticky problems created by a small one-commodity country's effort to make domestic changes that touches the interests of its major customers, investors and creditors. Chile presents merely the latest and currently the rawest case in which this complex of problems has produced not only bilateral political tension-that will presumably pass-but acute economic distress and uncertainty for the smaller country involved. Chile's attempt to organize a world copper producers' cartel and to develop alternative markets and exports and credit sources may some day give it other choices than those it has available today. At the moment, its prospects-and that may include Mr. Aliende's own political prospects - are not blindingly bright.

There is no cause for American satisfaction in any of this. The current atmosphere serves neither American corporate interests in Chile, or in other Latin American countries of the left, nor the broader American interest in easing and better equalizing the terms of the partnership which geography and self-interest force upon all states in the hemisphere. The past attitude of certain American officials and companies has no donbt given Mr. Allende certain grounds to claim injury. It is also true that as the larger and more powerful party by far, it becomes the United States to show more equanimity than it always has. Still, Mr. Allende's grandstand play at the United Nations has not made it any easier for Mr. Nixon to try to do the right thing by Chile. Nor is it evident that Mr. Allende has done the right thing by Chile.

Mr. Nixon in his second term presumably would like to build in the small countries on the achievements he realized in his first term in the big countries. It is likely that he hopes to follow up his political successes on the international stage with movement towards a more just and cooperative world economic order. These are surely among the larger purposes of the reorganization Mr. Nixon has undertaken of the U.S. foreign policy structure. They are necessarily among the larger purposes any enlightened history-minded President would wish to

The new measures announced by Transportation Secretary Volpe in many respects closely parallel proposals adopted by the Senate last September but defeated in the House, partly as a result of administration opposition. They provide for electronic screening of all boarding passengers, for federal purchase of screening devices, for the positioning of armed law enforcement officers at passenger checkpoints and for direction of the over-all security program by the Federal Aviation Administration.

> It is questionable whether primary responsibility for financing and administering a federal program designed to enforce federal iaws should be left with the airlines and local authorities. However, the Volpe plan deserves a trial. It should be closely monitored by Congress, especially the enforcement provisions. It still may prove preferable in the interest of discipline and uniformity to create a federal airport security force, possibly financed through the existing Federal Aviation Trust Fund.

Green Light From NATO

The chiefs of staff, defense ministers and foreign ministers of NATO, holding their winter meeting this week, will be marking a historic turning point in one area. They will give the alliance's governments the green light for diplomatic recognition of East Germany, effective from the date of and East Germany. The details of how this "normalization" proceeds is a bilateral matter, with the United States, Britain and France reserving their special rights and duties as victors of World War II. Bonn would like to see the NATO communiqué again carry a comment to the effect that the aim of peaceful reunification has not been completely relinquished. But in any case the Soviet Union will have scored a clearcut policy victory when NATO publicly signing of the "basic treaty" between West acknowledges the existence of two equal German states.

The New American Frontier?

By C. L. Sulzberger

DARIS.-U.S. economic dynamism is expanding everywhere and Soviet Russia is the new American frontier, ready for massive development by U.S. enterprise and anxious to cooperate in this grand endeavor. This, at ary rate, is the opinion of Jean-Jacques Servan - Schreiber, 48year-old French editor-writer-pol-itician, publisher of the highly successful magazine L'Express, anthor of a best-selling book. The American Challenge," and president of the opposition Radical

J-J S-S, as he likes to be known, is pessimistic about the European Common Market's future because "it has no unified policy and is only a commercial agreement." He argues: "The Americans are easily winning the competition. Now they are conquering the Eastern market, above all the Soviet Union. The Russians have decided 100 percent to open themselves to Western industrial development. But they are doing this with the United States, not Europe. Russia is the new Far West for America. The Soviet Union is a very rich country to develop. And the situation in China resembles that of Russia.

is in a stable American presence in the Far East: in Victosm and Korean settlements compatible with American interests and commitments; and in a strong Europe and a strong Japan firmly backed by the United States. The last thing China wants is to have the United States defeated and humiliated in the Far East, and to withdraw into bitter isolation. In effect, China wishes to achieve a relationship with us parallel to that of Japan.

The recent agreement between China and Japan should be viewed in this perspective. So long as American policy remains both firm and conciliatory, China, Japan and the United States have an equal interest in the normalication of relations between China and Japan.

The Soviet interest is guite different. The Soviet Union has gone as far as it dared to frustrate the rapprochement between China and the United States. It backed Hanoi's all-out offensive last spring, and is still sending Hanoi significant military supplies. If the Soviets prevail in Vietnam, pro-Soviet forces will gain strength in China and the peaceful promise of China's new policy may well fade.

But the triangular relationship involving China, the Soviet Union and the United States and Its allies, if well managed, should generate enough tension to assure restraint in Soviet as well as in Chinese policy. with a sense of humor and intricately detailed yet carefree in look. Scott Barrie, 27, is less avant-garde and kinky than Burrows and Willi Smith and his sweater sets in stripes, houndstooth and tweed qualify as classics. His collection this spring is full of unlined chiffons and jerseys that have a soft, fluffy feeling. They are selling very well.

Willi Smith

Willi Smith, 24, is a Philadelphian who was described by the Coty nomination committee as an "innovator of his own distinct type of sportswear classics with a young kick to them. He uses classic fabrics but combines them in such a way that they become

A pleasant, easy, bespectacled man, Smith, who does medium-priced sportswear for a firm called Digits, knows exactly what he is all about. "The fashion world is beginning to understand at last that the Negro has a contribution to make both as a designer and a consumer," he said. "I am into black taste and black fashion. Black people are not afraid to wear what is new, different and avant-garde. Like high heels for men. Black cats were wearing them before they hit big. But the attitude of black people towards clothes is what I dig. Look at those black guys pushing carts on Seventh Avenue, wearing those striped mobair sweaters. You can see something of the sort now in Fifth Avenue stores."

"My feeling," he added, "is that most of the designers who have to run to Paris for color and fabric combinations should go to church any Sunday in Harlem."

readily understood in either of the townships (English is the best bet for a non Dutch/Flemish speaker). The name of Baarle-Hertog in French is Baerle-Duc.

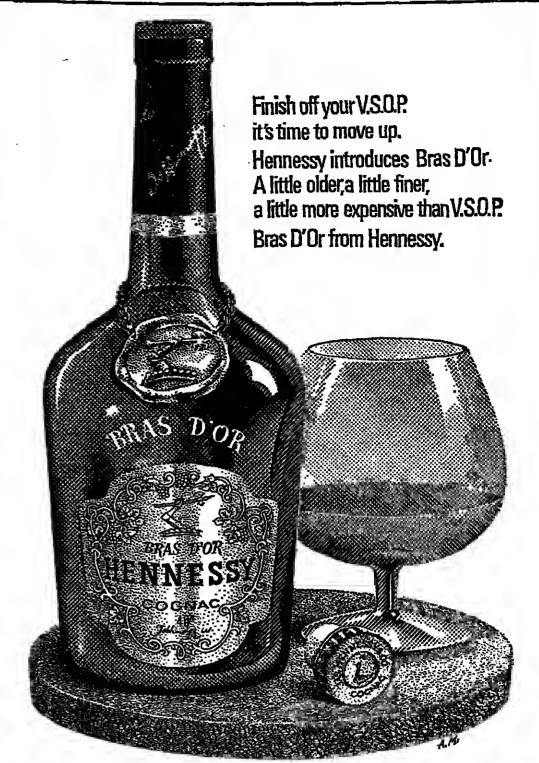

During World War I, when the Kaiser's infantry had occupied Belgium proper, the Baarle enclaves, protected by neutral Dutch acreage, became headquarters for Belgian resistance and the site of a free radio station. In World War II, there were different curfew hours.

There still are, in a sense, Dutch bars close at midnight. More liberal Belgian licensing laws allow the houses in Baarle-Hertog to stay open until 2 a.m. Then again, hard liquor may not be sold across a Belgian bar, while an oude genever for a scotch-on-the-rocks) is readily available in the Dutch hars,

The Belgians officially frown upon the hard-core porno displayed in an Amsterdam-type sex shop on the Dutch side of one little street. A Dutch shop owner is not happy that his Beleian colleague can sell a pack of cigarettes a few pennies cheaper than he can. Then again, he may be able to market a bottle of bourbon at a more favorable

There are precious few eustoms officers prowling the sidewalks. It would take a brigade to control international trade in Bearle. It is all very enigmatic. Living in Baarle has its advantages and disadvantages. A citizen living in Holland and working in Belgium (or vice versa) may wind np paying taxes in both countries. Or, if conditions are right he may, quite legally, pay no taxes at all. The two Bearles ought to be a happy prowling ground for a student of interna-

"We have problems, to be sure," Mr. Loots admitted, "but the advantages of living as we do outreigh any problem. Attempts have been made in the past to 'solve' our situation but we don't want it solved. We've learned to live with it and we in tha twin towns wouldn't want to live in any other way."

France will reduce the growth of its money supply from 20 percent this year to 15 or 16 percent next year. This will be achieved by asking banks to limit the growth in their loan business to certain fixed percentages or rick being penalized.

Freeze an Interest

The banks, which in recent weeks have raised interest rates abaut I percentage point following increases in their obligatory reserves as well as government-administered interest rates, will be enjoined from making further increases. Meanwhile, the interest paid on savings accounts will be increased by half a point.

While rejecting government-imposed controls an wages or prices, Mr. Giscard d'Estaing called on labor and management to hold wage increases to 6 percent next year while the government will aim to keep the rise in prices to 4 percent. This would guar-antee a 2-point gain in workers' murchasing newer Should prices purchasing power. Should prices rise more than the goal, wages will be allowed to rise by the same amount, thus guaranteeing the increase in purchasing power.

In response to a question, the minister said that the unions had not been sounded out nn this idea in advance. Wages are currently rising about 12 percent a year while prices are climbing about 7 per-immediate reaction of French bankers was positive. "A comprehensive program," said an economist for a state-run bank. "Politically obvious and techni-cally good," said an official of a private bank. "This is the most effective way of dealing directly with the problems. Lowering prices on meat, bread and pastrles," be added, 'will have heavy political impact," Shift on Taxes

However, this banker sees the lowering of the value added tax (to the level existing elsewhere in Europe, Mr. Giscard d'Estaing said as the first step to shifting the tax burden from heavy reliance on indirect means to greater reliance on personal income taxes. But that kind of tax reform, he added, will come after the national elections.

The government's plan calls for dropping the value-added-tax rates on Jan. 1, with the 23 percent rate dropping to 20 percent (luxury items and industrial goods) and the 7.5 percent rate entatives of all three to ? percent (mostly food). The total that the agreement tax on beef will be suspended esterday was in harmony altogether for the first six months of the year and the tax on pastries will be cut to 7 from 17.6 percent during the same period. Food prices have been the fastest rising component in the consumer price index.

Air. Giscard d'Estaing explained at length that the program was olmed at leaving the economy's averoll performance intact. (In a somewhat similar situation in 1963, serving as President de Gaulle's finance minister, Mr. Giscard d'Estaing put together a stabilization program that many people later claimed set the ground of economic discontent that led to the May 1968 con-

The minister noted that the economy's "accelerated growth" is continuing and revised upward to 5.8 percent the volume of the estimated growth in this year's gross national product. Only two months, ago, the estimate had been revised upward to a 5.6 percent rate. The 5.8 percent rate. forecast for next year, will also have to be raised, he added,

BSN, Danone Reportedly Eye Link

Boussois-Souchon-Neuvesel (BSN) and Gervais-Danone are expected to announce agreement soon that could lead to a merger and to France's largest food group. Trading in the shares was halted by the Paris Bourse peuding a joint announcement Friday. Danone, capitalized at 280.2 million francs, is the nation's biggest dairy cancorn with annual sales of about 1.7 billion frames. BSN is a major glass maker, as well as brewer, producer of mineral water, soft drinks and baby foods. It is capitalized at 152.5 million francs and reported consalidated sales of 4 hillion francs last year. Annual sales of BSN's food division and those of Danone would amount to about 3 billion francs. Industry sources said that recent heavy British acquisitions in the French food industry have prompted the twn firms to negotiate.

Fiat Plans Factory in Brazil

Fint will present a plan early next year to build a $230 million auto factory in Brazil. Francesco Rota, a vice-manager of Fiat, bas submitted preliminary plans for the project to be built near Belo Horizonte. It will make cars for export and the Brasilian market. Amerada Hess Sets Write-Off

Amerada Hess directors have authorized tharges against earnings of around $116 million before taxes that will result in reducing 1972 earnings from operations by about $60 million, or $1.63 a share. The company previously reported net income for the nine months, before extraordinary items, of $65 million, or $1.78 a share. It says $58 million of the pretax charges are provisions for anticipated losses under longterm fixed-price contracts to supply residual, or extremely heavy, fuel oil to two New York State electric utilities. The remaining $58 million re-sults orimarily from a change in the method of accounting for undeveloped oil and gas leases and from the write-off of the unamortized cost of certain inactive and noncommercial oil and gas

U.S. Vehicle Prices Moving Up

Chrysler Corp. has raised its prices an average another $40, or 1 percent, using the balance of the 860 authorization it received from the Price Commission in mid-October. The action came two days after General Motors put into effect a $54-a-vehicle, or 1.2 percent, increase that it was allowed last Friday.

After Two Months in Office

Krupp Chairman Resigns in Policy Row

ESSEN, West Germany, Dec. 7. Juergen Krackow, managing chairman of the giant Krupp industrial concern, has resigned af-ter only two months in office following policy disagreements, the company announced today. The statement said Mr. Kreckaw's departure resulted from "differing views on matters of conduct of the concern, especially personnel problems." Mr. Krackow, 49, joined Krupp nn Oct. 1 this year after the resignation of Guenter Vogelsang.

whose action also reportedly followed differences over management policy. Succeeding Mr. Krackow from next Jan. 1 will be Ernst-Wolf Mommsen, who has been connected with the German steel in-dustry since before World War II. Mr. Mommsen, 63, has been working for the government for the past two and a half years in an unpaid post as state secreta-

Prices Rise .6% in U.S. In November

Wholesale Index Gain Is 7% at Annual Rate

By Peter Milius

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (WP),--With farm and food products in prices leaped abead at an annual rate of 72 percent last month, the Labor Department reported

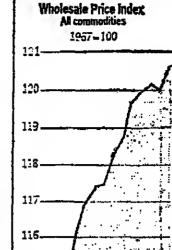

The price rise for the month— 0.6 percent both before and after seasonal adjustments-lifted the department's wholesale price index to 5.4 percent above its level of a year ago, the point where wage and price controls began. That meant that wholesale prices have been rising faster in the first year of controls than they did in the first eight months of 1971, before President Nixon imposed his wage-price freeze. At Camp David, Md_ however, where the President was in session with advisers on the pending federal hudget, press secretary Ronald L Ziegler said: "I am taid by those who assess these things that we do not regard the Norember increase as a lessening of progress in the fight against in-

He said that the administration has "made significant strides in bringing the rate of inflation down," and that "we feel the economy is bealthy today."

Dow Soars To a Record Closing High Market Firms Despite Wholesale Price Gain By Vartanig G, Vartan

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (NYT) --The Dow Janes industrial average ond other leading market indicators forged to fresh peaks today an the heels of yesterday's record-shattering session for New York Stock Exchange prices. The Dow industrials, aherd by more than 2 throughout the day, finished at 1,033.34 with an advance of 5.80. Valume was a respectable 1932 million shares, climbing slightly from yesterday's 18.61 million. What made laday's gain all the more impressive was that it took place in the face of a Laker Department report slowing an increase in whole-ale prices during Navember.

"If the market were vulnerable or looking for an enema to fell oil," commented ane Wall Streeter, "that wholesale-price report would have offered a perfect excuse."

Dollar 'Float' Is Cleansed By a Double Intervention

OTTAWA, Dec. 7 (AP-DJ),-As If the world of international finance were not complicated enough, the Canadian government has come up with its own bewildering axiom on its management of the floating Canadian dallar. That is, says Finance Minister John N. Turner, two dirties make a clean

He said at a press conference that the Bank of Canada intervened recently in money markets to prevent the value of the Canadian dallar from going down too fast, it does this by using part of its big boldings in U.S. dollars to buy Canadian

However, Mr. Turner noted, earlier this year, when the Canadian dollar was going up too fast, the central bank bought about 500 million U.S. dollars to take off some of the pressure. What this means is that Washington cannot accuse Ottawa of a "dirty float." Mr. Turner said with a straight face. "We have intervened on both sides; therefore it's a clean float."

In the lexicon of international finance, a "clean float" means that the money market trade alone determines a currency's value, while a "dirty flast" means that the central bank steps into the open market and uses its own money to prevent the currency from rising or falling too fast.
As port of its quest for international monetary

Washington has been pressing Ottawn to repeg its dollar to a fixed value in relation to the U.S. dollar. Ottawa told Washington to mind its own business and said there was nothing wrong with letting a currency float as long as the float was Canada unpegged its dallar from its official rate of 92 1/2 U.S. cents in June 1970. It is now trading at about 0.99 U.S.

All of these Securities having been sold, this announcement appears as a matter of record only.

British companies are expanding into the USA. Because the returns can be high. But selling into the mecca of marketing isn't for the faint-hearted; the competition is tough and they are fighting in their own backyard.

Irving can help. Through our London Branch you get direct access to all the commercial banking facilities of our Wall Street headquarters. Complete financial services covering the whole of the USA. Data on your particular US international banking.

market; its history, present activity and forecast. Location and introduction to agents, distributors, lawyers and consultants. Credit information. Help with planning and execution of mergers or acquisitions. In fact, the whole range.

We are big enough ($1 billion in deposits in London) to give you full international services yet small enough to give you personal attention.

Let Irving be your personal guide to

BRIDGE____

By Alan Truscott

In a recent issue of The Bridge World, Frank Vinc of Hamilton, Ontario, nominated a certain Minnie Mincement of Dustville, Colo., for the first "With you for a partner, who needs enemies?" award. Her first and last elaim to bridge fame was that she held the South rards on the diagramed deal, Her bidding was exemplary: She opened one heart, rebld the suit after a two-diamond resporse, and did nothing further. When South put her partner in heart game, East produced belated support for his partner's spaces. Four spaces would no call would have given the clue to the winning play in diamonds Before West could lead, East had put the spade eight firmly on the toble. He had heard North bid hearts twice, so it seemed to him that he was entitled to lead. South knew that she had four penalties to choose from. With two possible spade loser, staring her in the face, she demanded that West lead some other suit. Shrugging, West led a club. East ruffed and returned a diamond. Another club ruff, a diamond ruff, a diamond ruff and a third club ruff gave the defense the first five tricks. another diamond was led, South ruffed high and drew the one remaining trump: down three, South would have ovoided her understandable but disastrous decision if she had followed the recommendation of New York's leading tournament directors. "Always accept a kod out of turn," state these experts. If your opponent is so confused that he does not know whose lead it is, it is fair to assume that his choice of suit will not be the best for the defense.

THE MANTICORE By Robertson Daries. Viking. 310 p. $7.95. Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

READERS of Robertson Davies's last novel will recall—as I had to do, since my copy of "Fifth Business" is still, after two years, making the rounds of borrowers (a sure index of its appeals—that at the end of the story, the narrator's old friend, Canadian tycoon Percy Boyd (Boy) Staumton, has just been found dead, clutching with superhuman strength the steering wheel of his car, which he, or someone else, had driven at top speed off the end of a Toronto dock, Most curious of all, in the corpse's mouth is a pink granite stone about the size of a hen's egg, which the narrator, retired schooltescher Dunstan Ramsay, had presented to Boy earlier on the evening of his death, in the presence of another old acquaintance, the famous illusionist Magnus Risen-grim. Now, while this rather bizarre turn of events proved a symbolically satisfying conclusion to "Fifth Business" (given the previous history of that pink tone, not to mention the past relationship of the three men) on the more literal level certain. details remained to be cleared up. So when, at the beginning of Mr. Davies's new novel, "The Manticore," I discovered that Boy's son, David—now grown up to become a rich, powerful and superrational criminal lawyer—is also still bothered by his father's strange death-indeed that he has recently attended a Toronto performance of Magnus Eisengrim's illusions and found himself shouting angrily "Who killed Boy Staunton?" at the oracular "brazen head" that is the pièce de résistance of Eisengrim's performance and that this outburst of David's has prompted him finally to travel to Zurich, Switzerland, to undertake a Jungian psychoanalysis—I was immediately and delightedly willing to go along.

And go along I did, tracing
David's steps all the way through his lengthy analysis with Frau Doktor Johanna von Haller, tingling with anticipation when on a vacation in St. Call he en-counters his father's and friend, the retired schoolteacher Dunstan Ramsay, in the company of the hideous-looking but mysteriously attractive Fraulein Doktor Liselotte Naegeli (whom readers of "Fifth Business" will remember as Dunstan's former lover and Magmis Eisengrim's manager), and holding my breath as the three of them join Elsengrim in his Gothic castle overlooking. St. Gall and begin to explore the past. But by the time David does get close to the mystery of his father's death and Dunsta slams the last door on David's questions by hurling the pink stone off a cliff and telling David in effect to forget it, I found I

I had been distracted, first, by that long Jungian analysis. Mr. Davies creates it in detail offering us excerpts from David's journal and scraps of his conversations with Dr. von Haller. reviewer for The New York Tim no longer cared particularly, because in the meantime I had been distracted.

The whole process is rende: with such skill that not o does David become a charac of greater substance than as one Mr. Davies has creahitherto, but also that mantic that appears in one of Dav dreams (a mantieure—uncomo even in mythe is a lion with human face and a berbed tall; this case, Dr. von Haller explan it is a symbol of "the rather ! developed instinctual side of h nature": takes on the power dominate all the varied that of this rich novel. I had been distracted, seen because no matter what ? Davies writes about—whether he Jungian archetypes, the retion of myth to history, nature of human evil, the mer ing of the law or the wondert interesting characters that k popping up on his pages—he d it with such entertaining in ligence that I wouldn't care he failed to clear up any of mysteries,

I had been distracted, the because Dear the point wi David seems to be solving father's death, Frittlein Dok Liselotte Masgell that hide but enchanting ogress—deck to teach David a thing or i about the feeling of awe. A while the trip she take, him. -through a long and mare tunnel into a cave where p historic men once worshiped be —is a little too obvious as symbol of rebirth, its details sufficiently amusing and scary have worked for me. And I was distracted in worrying about that stone in E Staunton's mouth, finally, becau by the time an answer scene due, I was beginning to were about certain other questions. Y see, when Devid takes his vac "tion in St. Gall, only one stated the analysis has been completed—the one of looking it his personal past and thus cles ing up the symptoms that h driven him to seek help in the first place. But another six still lies ahead, if David chan to continue—the one of examini archetypes with whi [he is] already superficin familiar" but "going beyond wi is personal about them," To Day first this means identifying the fr of a woman in one of his dream and allowing her to lead h to some spiritual treasure bur. within him, Who the woman . and what the treasure will . Thus I take it we can expe is turning out to be a thorough entertaining psychic serial, I ca' say just how much my enjoyme of this latest book was enhance by my having read the caone. (My guess would be the Manticore" will stand its own.) But anyway, I c., hardly wait for the next insta. ... ment and I urge you to catch . . with at least "The M before it comes along

The Austrian wunderdamen of today included "an old" pro, 22-year-old Wiltrud Drexel, who finished fourth, and youngsters up from the Austrian B and C teams. The Austrians, who rely on skiing to sell equipment and stimulate tourism, cleaned house after a poor showing in the Olympics, during which they did not win a gold medal.

Anton (Tony) Saller, triple

gold-medal winner in 1956, was named the team's technical adviser, and Heini Massner, a form-er Austrian downhiller, was made coach of the women's team.

U.S. Isn't Sad The French did well, with Isabelle Mir seventh and Danielle Debernard tying for 10th with Swiss Marianne Hefti The Americans were not overly sad about their sad showing. They had only three weeks of serious skiing in preparation for this meet and U.S. women have not been known for their downhill provess. Miss Nalson, in her first inernational race since she dislocated a hip in Switzerland last January, said, "Now, it's only a matter of practice." while Miss Corrock, who finished far down in last year's opening cup race, too, said, "I guess I'm just a slow starter." When it was obvious that Miss Proell's time would not be besten, Miss Corrock added: "I guess this year has the same shape as last." The other U.S. finishers were Susan Patterson, 35th; Gail Blackburn, 39th, and Martha Coughlin, 55th.

Packers, Vikings Prefer a Heated Rivalry

By William N. Wallace

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (NYT) .-Pro tootball's big event this Sunday will ha in Bloomington, Minn, where the Vikings take on the Green Bay Packers in a game expected to settle the National Conference's Central Division title The Packers ara one game shead of the Vikings the Detroit Lions, whom best badly last Sunday.

The Packers and Vikings hope it warms up by Sunday. They both played in temperatures 2 degrees below zero Fabrenhelt. and in Bloomington, breezes from the north dropped the wind-chill factor to minus 23. "You never get used to it," said

Bobby Bryant, the Minnesota cornerback from South Carolina. He recovered a Chicago fumble last week and ran 24 yards for touchdown in a 23-10 victory that was more decisive than the score. The Viking defense held the Bears to a net gain of 1 yard by passing and 90 yards rushing. Every seat was occupied and

Minnesola trounced Green Bay,

27-13, on Oct. 29 after losing four of its first six games. "They sure didn't look over the hill when they played us," said Malcolm Snider, a Packer guard. "If I had my druthers, I'd rather have wrapped up the champion-ship at midseason. But going dyeball-to-eyeball with them now. with everything at stake, is kind of postic, I guess."

Green Bay's strength is its defense and its spirit. Ken Ellis, the cornerback, played by choice with a shoulder separation. Doctors had told him if he played and was hit he might have to undergo surgery, "I said fine, I'd have from Pebruary to July to recover," said Ellis.

The Green Bay offense has a good line and great running backs, but the passing game and the quarterbacks are mediocre at best. The Vikings are favored by 4 points. The wind-chill index in Kansas

Baltimore was 5,000 short of 60,-000 capacity, but it sounded like 100,000 after John Unites threw what was probably his last pass there for the Colts. It resulted in a 63-yard touchdown play. his 287th scoring pass for Balti-more since 1955. Unitas probably will retire or play elsewhere next

He got in the game only because Marty Domres, the regular quarterback, pulled a log muscle. Domres denied having faked the injury so Unites could play one last time in other than a token manner. "Td never do that," said Domres.

Larry Brown and Bill Kilmer of the Redskins were injured slightly against the Eagles and may be rested in Saturday's game at Dallas. Bob Brunet and Sam Wyche would be the replacements, respectively.

Kuhn Accused by Miller Of Undermining Talks

By Joseph Durso

Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner of baseball, was accused by the players' representative today of clouding the climate of labor negotiations by statements that tend to harden the positions of

The commissioner was criticized for taking the club owners' case to the public by Marvin Miller, executive director of the major league baseball Players' Association. He said that Kuhn was guilty of bad faith, that be had made a "fraudulent" statement and that it was "an act that only a rank amateur would perform.

Miller spoke at a news conference in a restaurant here. It was called in reply to one held by Kuhn last week in Honolulu during the owners' business convention.

The commissioner, disclosing the owners' position in the current talks on warking conditions, had made known a "historic" proposal to relax the reserve the players had rejected it and reported the nagotiations were stalemated.

Understanding Broken "Mr. Kuhn's statement was in violation of an understanding that he would resolve our problems in private," Miller said.

"He and his clients not enig are guilty of bad faith but also made a destructive statement of quastionable integrity. His predictions of catastrophe if the terms were not accepted were a transparent and inspt attempt to psych the players and the fans, "But we are still negotiating and it is our hope that we can still reach an amicable and practical agreement. We have enother meeting scheduled next Tuesday. We will continue to negotiate, boning the talks have not been poisoned,"

Miller was asked about predictions that another bascball strike was imminent if agreement were not reached on the two sets of talks. The "basic agreement" on minimum pay, the reserve system and working conditions expires Dec. 21: the pension agreement on March 31. The critical dispute centers on the reserve clause, which binds a player to his team until be retires or is traded. No Impasse Yet

"To say there will be another strike is a very 'iffy' thing," he reolied. "A strike occurs only when there is a complete falldown of negotiations, an impasse. We have not reached that stage yet. In fact, until Mr. Kuhn made his statements, the talks had been Miller also directed fire at the owners' proposal on relaxing the reserve clause. Under it, a player would become a free agent after live years in the major leagues !! not offered more than $30,000, or after eight years if not abova $40,000. After 10 years, if the last five were spent with one team, he could refuse to be traded. "Mr. Kuhn talked of a great proposal the owners had made." Miller said, "and expressed dis-may that the players bad not accapted it. The Christ Child's Market hasn't changed much since the days 14 roads led into the old, walled city...

The Spirit of Christmas in Nuremberg

By Joe Alex Morris

NUREMBERG.—The Christkinderimarkt opened last Friday, as it has for most of the past 400 years, on the cobblestoned. medieval marketplace of this capital city of Franconia. The name means the Christ Child's Market: the tradition here is that the Christ Child, not Santa Claus, brings gifts to children at this season.

Like Christmas everywhere, it is a combination of the religious and the commercial, but there is a sense of balance appropriate to the occasion.

With the exception of the floodlights which bathe the baroque facade of the Church of Our Lady, the Christkinder, markt hasn't changed much since the old days. Then, 14 roads led into the old walled city, bringing traders and craftsmen from afar for the annual fair.

The traders are still there, 153 of them this year, displaying their wares under red and white striped awnings spread over the marketplace. Clouds of aromatic smoke pour forth from the stalls where sausages are cooking over char-coal fires, and the air is heady with the smell of Glühuzin, the hot spiced wine which cuts the chill of a winter evening.

Traditional Accent

They offer a dazzling display of goodies to tempt all ares. There are a few gimmicks, such as plastic Buddhas, but the accent is on tradition.

There are the toys for which Nuremberg is famous, plus the Lebkuchen, or Nuremberg gingerbread, made from a secre: recipe and using the honey produced by bees in the nearby Reichswald. And the figures made from prunez, raisins and walnuts clad in local costumes painstakingly made by hand and selling for just over half a dollar.

There is no bawking, and the atmosphere is that of a small "The traders here are all one big family," says Ludwig Baehr, the city official in charge. "Most of them come back year after vear."

The Christ Child's Market begins when the bells of the church ring twice for 5:30 p.m. on Dec. 1. (It lasts until Dec. 23.) The evening darkness is suddenly pierced by the floodlights, revealing the Christ Child standing on a church balcony, fishked by two angels.

They are called Rauschgoldengel, and legend dates them back to a doll maker named Hauser who lived 200 years 370. Hauser was very poor, but he had a beautiful daughter who died just before Christmas one year.

He and his wife were overcome with grief; then he made an angei with the little girl's face and put it in his sleeping wife's arms. She woke up and saw it and smiled for the first time in weeks. His neighbors asked him to make them angels. and sooo the Rauschyoldengel became a high point of the Christ Child's Market.

The Christ Child is always played by a teen-aged girlanother tradition whose origins are lost in the distant pur-By the time she appears, the marketplace is jammed. A little old lady was among the crowd with her small granddaughter. They had arrived early, and picked a good spot on a curb, but soon they were lost in a forest of taller

"Can't you move on?" she asked a buxom Frau in a leopard-skio coat who had planted herself directly in front of them. The lady mumbled something but didn't move—the press of the crowd was so great that she would have had difficulty had she wanted to.

The little girl began to cry, hardly an auspicious start for her Christmas. Then a stranger picked her up and, through the clouds of smoke waiting off the bratwurst, she saw the Christ Child, the angels, and the trumpeters blowing their fantures.

The day was saved. The brief message of the Christ Child was a reminder that Christmas was more than just getting things. "Don't forget, ladies and gentlemen, that he who has everything doesn't need

"It is the children of the world and the poor people who know best what presents mean."

In the old days, the market was an occusion for the local nobility to go around making gifts to the poor. Today, the city has taken over, bringing presents to orphans and others for whom the Christmas spirit would otherwise be a bitter memory. The ceremony is mercifully short. After the Christ Child speaks, a children's choir sings "Silent Night," and the floodlights go out. The good burghers, presumably endowed with the spirit of giving, begin to circulate among the stalls. Just around the corner is a sex shop, advertising porno films until 6:30 p.m. It appears deserted, at least on this occasion.

Other pagan thoughts were once associated with the festival. The origins are obscure, but it is believed to date back to heathenish times, and even during the early Christian era, it included a procession to frighten off the evil spirits. In the 19th century, puritums tried to de-emphasize the market because of these origins. But the city's emergence as the toy center of the world helped keep it alive.

There was B time when the name Nuremberg was synonymous with toys, and the world's higgest toy fair is still held here every February. But hard times have come upon West Germany's 400 toymakers and their 25,000 workers.

Talent Left

"Fifty years ago, we were practically the only ones," laments Georg Meidenbauer, head of the toy industry association. "But during the Third Reich, many noo-Aryans were forced to leave, and they took their talents with them."

More recently, revaluations of the mark have made German toys more expensive, and even here in the home market, an invasion of foreign toys from chesp-labor lands such as Japan and Italy has cut deeply. Imports were up 20 percent last year, and German toy production stagnated,

The only answer, Mr. Meidenbauer says, is to go back to traditional German ingenuity, meo such as Peter Henlein who in the 16th century invented the first pocket watch, Perlaps the most interesting of Mr. Meidenbauer's iamen tations is about the change in popular attitudes towards Christmas gift giving. Throughout the recent election campaign, Chancellor Willy Brandt kept arging Germans to think more about the quality of their lives, and less about their affluence and acquisitions.

"The election campalen fort us," Mr. Meidenbauer says, "People are not buying simply because they have money in their Wally Brandt is many things to many people. But this was perhaps the first time be had been accused of trying to sell the Christmas spirit to his fellow Germans.
